KASICH ANNOUNCES APPOINTMENT TO RICHLAND COUNTY COMMON PLEAS COURT

COLUMBUS – Today Gov. John R. Kasich announced the appointment of Brent N. Robinson of Lexington (Richland Co.) to serve as judge on the Richland County Common Pleas Court. Robinson will assume office on February 10, 2014, and must run in November 2014 to retain the seat for the remainder of the unexpired term, which ends January 1, 2017. Robinson is replacing Judge James D. Henson, who will retire effective February 7, 2014.

Robinson received a Bachelor of Arts Degree from Otterbein College and earned his Juris Doctorate from Capital University Law School. He has served as First Assistant Prosecuting Attorney in the Richland County Prosecutor's Office since 2006.

Robinson previously served as Chief Criminal Assistant Prosecuting Attorney in the Richland County Prosecutor's Office, Criminal Assistant Prosecuting Attorney in the Richland County Court of Common Pleas, and as Juvenile Assistant Prosecuting Attorney in the Richland County Juvenile Court. His trial experience includes the prosecution of 63 felony jury trials, an overall jury trial conviction rate of 95 percent, a 100 percent jury trial conviction rate in murder cases, and 19 years of jury trial and litigation experience. He received the 2010 MADD appreciation award and was given an award of appreciation by the United States Marshals Service Northern Ohio Violent Fugitive Task Force for his legal advice and support of the mission to remove violent fugitives from the streets of Richland County from 2009-2013.
