

April 2, 2013

Ohio moves while Pennsylvania sits still on transportation

Written by Jon Schmitz

Ohio Gov. John Kasich signed a two-year, $7.6 billion bill for transportation and public safety on Monday, which will supply $4 billion for road and bridge work, according to The Plain Dealer of Cleveland. Mr. Kasich announced his plan to raise revenue for transportation on Dec. 13 and it took less than four months to see it become law.

One is left to wonder what they're thinking in the Buckeye State. No blue-ribbon commission? No endless dawdling on the part of the governor and legislators? Just put together a plan and quickly get it through the legislative process? That's not how we do business in Pennsylvania.

<http://blogs.post-gazette.com/news/the-roundabout/37529-ohio-moves-while-pennsylvania-sits-still-on-transportation>

###