

THE PLAIN DEALER

Kasich says raindrops won't dampen opening of Ohio State Fair or family day out

July 23, 2014

By Robert Higgs

COLUMBUS, Ohio -- Rain was falling Wednesday as Gov. John Kasich opened the 2014 Ohio State Fair, but that didn't dampen spirits.

"Some people would think it's not so great when it rains (on the fair)," Kasich said just before cutting the ribbon to open the event. "To me, it's just a different experience."

This year's fair, the 161st version, will run through Aug. 3. It is an event that draws hundreds of thousands of people.

Article continued here.