

The Crescent-News

Friday, August 22, 2014

Kasich Honors Kroger's Efforts to Combat Drug Abuse

By Marc Kovac

COLUMBUS -- Gov. John Kasich honored one grocery store chain for its participation in a state campaign to combat drug abuse, and he challenged other Ohio businesses to join the effort, too.

Kroger is among the first businesses to commit to displaying new "Start Talking" posters and distributing drug abuse information to shoppers statewide.

"I want to know how many other businesses are willing to do what Kroger's done?" the governor said during a press conference at the suburban Columbus store where he does his grocery shopping.

Article continued here: <http://www.crescent-news.com/ohio%20statehouse/2014/08/22/kasich-honors-kroger-s-efforts-to-combat-drug-abuse>