

THE PLAIN DEALER

November 29, 2013

Ohio Gov. John Kasich bans a letter for the Buckeyes' rivalry? No biggie - this story didn't need it

By Doug Lesmerises

CAPITAL OF THE STATE, Ohio – Let's see if this can be done. Ohio Gov. John Kasich told everyone not to use a certain letter of the alphabet in a resolution released Friday by his office.

"Whereas, there are 26 letters in the English alphabet," it began, before concluding with Kasich's recognition of Saturday as "Scarlet Letter Saturday" throughout Ohio, with everyone in the state encouraged to avoid using that letter whenever possible.

The reason? The Contest, The Tilt, The ... Thing between Ohio State and that other school.

Read full article here:

http://www.cleveland.com/osu/index.ssf/2013/11/ohio_gov_john_kasich_bans_a_le.html

###