Gov. John Kasich appoints new Public Utilities Commission of Ohio chairman

By John Funk

Gov. John Kasich has named a state lawmaker from Stark County to head the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio.

Todd Snitchler, a Republican from Uniontown, is a man with a reputation for being open-minded but skeptical about renewable energy such as wind and solar because of the cost.

Snitchler is in his second term as a state representative and was recently named chairman of the House Public Utilities Committee. He has also served on the House Alternative Energy Committee.
